

The Syracuse New Times is looking for bloggers and vloggers to contribute to our website! If you're interested in having your voice heard, or would like to simply get some experience in the field of journalism, this is your opportunity!

Bloggers may write about topics that typically have to do with Syracuse or its surrounding area, however, this is not required. If the topic is suitable for the New Times, it will be also be considered. Some topics to consider are stories on local businesses, people and events. Broader topics can include, but are not limited to, covering pop culture, television, movies and more.

Vloggers may put together video packages ranging from roughly two-eight minutes in length. The topics that can be covered for these videos are similar to blog posts, though vlogs tend to be more local-oriented.

Blog Requirements:

- Access to own computer.
- Writing experience and knowledge of AP style is preferred.
- Must present at least three examples of writing to be considered.
- Knowledge of Syracuse and the surrounding area is a plus.

Vlog Requirements

- Access to own camera, computer and editing software.
- Experience in editing and camera work is preferred.
- Must link or send examples of video work to be considered.
- Knowledge of Syracuse and the surrounding area is a plus.

If interested in either opportunity, please email David Armelino at darmelino@syracusenewtimes.com.
